HO*HO RESTAURANT
35 Main Street
Reisterstown, Maryland.

Public

35 Main Street was a modest, traditional dwelling dating from the end of the nineteenth century, its steep front gable identifying it with the Gothic revival style. It is among the few remaining early structures in its immediate neighborhood.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (IF KNOWN) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

35 Main Street is a two storey frame structure three bays in length facing the street to the west. A steep gable is centered in the front roof slope. Extending to the east or rear behind the entire structure is a two storey rear wing three bays in length, its gabled roof perpendicular to that of the front section. All roofs project beyond the walls with wide plain eave and rake cornices. A single flue chimney formerly rose within the south gable and a similar chimney rises from the middle of the rear wing. This structure appears to date from the ca. 1885-1900 period. A one storey twentieth century extension with a low-pitched shed roof extends across the east facade.

Windows are 4/4 with narrow frames, a few retaining louvred blinds. An arched 2/2 window is in the front gable. The entire first storey front wall is removed and brick walls enclose the space formerly occupied by a porch across the street front. The entrance was probably in the northerly bay as only the south gable had a chimney.

The entire first floor is remodeled as a restaurant, with no old finishes or details in evidence. The second floor is let as an apartment, not accessible for inspection.

A cellar is beneath the rear wing, partially extended into the front section.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

Probably an investment and commercial property throughout its history. Part of the Spring Garden tract. This house was probably built by Henry Emich. Emich and his wife, Mary, took out a mortgage on the property in 1887. (JWS 127/232). They had leased the property from 1871 from T. Flory (EHA 71/202). Flory held the property next to this to the south and had a flourishing Carriage Manufacturing firm there. H. F. Emich was a Saddlery and Harness maker. Both these enterprises were indicative of the influence of the Turnpike on the economy of Reisterstown. The 1877 Hopkins Atlas of Baltimore County indicates that Emich both lived and had his shop at this location.

For some reason Emich defaulted in the mortgage payments and in November 1888, the property was sold at auction to John W. Hitshue, Sr. for $1900. (Judicial Liber JWS 119/75) and (163/500). Hitshue (or Hitchue) had a successful hotel at the intersection of the Turnpike and the Westminster Pike and apparently was doing some other investing at this time. He died in 1895, and his son, John W. Hitshue, Jr., the surviving administrator of his father's estate and several other children deeded the property to Sallie K. Hitshue, wife of John W. in 1899. (238/104). J. Hitshue is shown as the owner on the 1898-1915 Bromley Atlas of Baltimore County.

In 1920, Sall(y) K. Hitshue sold the property to George and Laura Akehurst. In 1944, the Akehurst children, C. Spencer Akehurst, Beulah L. Grimes, and Lydia V. Grimes sold the property (by now with Ground Rent) to Elsie E. Demmes. (523/169 and 915/217). This was a "straw" transaction for Demmes immediately turned the property over to Harmon O. Grimes and Lydia. Three years later in 1948, the Grimes sold the property to John Czerwinski and wife, Anna. (1703/450)

Czerwinski sold to Eugene Will in 1967 (4749/53).

Will sold to John A. Schmidt in 1968 (4898/220).

In 1972, the Lewis Investment Company bought the property from Schmidt (5306/871).

In 1975, Herbert Lewis deeded the property to Neil J. Lewis, the current owner. Currently a Chinese restaurant is housed in the building.
